

THE SATURDAY MORNING BULLETIN.

VOL. 2. NO. 33.

Eureka Springs, Ark., Jan. 5. 1884.

CIRCULATION, 1,000

A great many saloons "awore off" on the 1st of January.

When the presidential timber for next campaign is all cut and dried, care must be taken that there is no split, and then it will be all O. K.

Senator Logan's bounty land bill provides: "Every person entering the service of his country during the late war, either in the army or navy, and honorably discharged therefrom, from any period of service less than one year, shall be entitled to eighty acres of public land, either for himself or heirs; for service between one and two years 120 acres; and over two years' service 160 acres.

We have repeatedly announced that we were always glad to receive notices of religious and other meetings or items of personal or local interest. A little assistance in this direction helps to make one's town paper interesting. One edition of The Bulletin is published free—it goes where no other publication does—to a miscellaneous reading public, and its value is acknowledged by the people. Of course we depend upon our advertising and job work for support, and such assistance of friends in the way of subscriptions, for parties abroad, as their liberality suggests, and we would like also their encouragement by way of furnishing items regarding our springs, etc. It is true The Bulletin is not large (which fact is a dark mote in some superficial people's eyes,) but then it does not depend upon prince's favors, and it will survive so long as there is good, sound sense enough among men to appreciate a truth wherever it may be found.

There are a few people in Eureka Springs who live on bread and water to appear well when they get from behind their screens, who, on the same principle, make a great deal of flourish as the friends of Eureka Springs, but are too poetical for any prosy effort that will do some practical good. There are a few business men living within themselves, whose precepts, if followed, would make the use of printer's ink for our material advancement, impossible. There have been associations for taking evidence of the work of Eureka waters that seem to act on a similar theory, and when they have a publication to make, to be high-toned, ask themselves which is the biggest paper, and not to be practical which has the most general circulation, or taking advantage of all. Of course we have outlived a great many who have air-castles for a dwelling place, and are never stronger than when our sword is unsheathed against the petty hypocrisy of the age, but we would like to see a more general revival of good sense and a still greater practical effort for Eureka Springs in 1884.

1884 is with us, and the forecast of the year's program indicate that it will be an important one in the chronological scale.

The Exponent, of Mt. Vernon, Ill., puts forward the name of John A. Logan for President. Bro. Edw. thinks he would be no slow-gun.

Many an urchin commenced 1884 sliding down hill. Alas! it will be much harder, in after life, for some of them to climb up!

The New Year came in with snow and ice and blasts from the solid north, and on the morning of the 2d, the thermometer had crept down within two degrees of zero, at which point the Arkansas man begins to hump up his old clothes to fill in the cracks of his primitive dwelling.

The doctor who is getting up that scare about the red sunsets, etc. would pilfer the grave of his paternal ancestor, or parade his potions in a funeral procession. He is, however, only in keeping with too large a portion of modern humanity, who would ride into wealth and luxury over the prostrate forms of their fellow men.

The Postmaster General has directed postmasters to exchange for the public as applications are made, 3 and 6-cent denominations of postage stamps and stamped envelopes for others of different denominations. Stamped envelopes are to be exchanged at full current rates. Stamped envelopes bearing printed cards and special requests, as well as ordinary stamped envelopes are to be exchanged. Also, stamped envelopes which bear printed addresses.

The steady work of Eureka Springs waters in curing many long-standing chronic cases, which have been almost daily under our observation for some months; the return of many old-time visitors, all of whom testify directly and positively to their high appreciation of the springs, and the wide-spread of the name and fame of Eureka, would seem to give assurance of a large inflow of visitors from sections further distant than ever before. Those disappointed speculators who would put their curse upon everything they can not utilize to their own use, have mostly sought seclusion and silence, and our petty rivals having about ceased their ineffective warfare, from the excitement of our earlier days, we are reaching a point in the appreciation of the world that gives us prominence and a reputation that will widen as we advance.

The eight-hour system in Australia was first established by the stone masons on March 24, 1856, and became general in the building trades on April 21, 1858. It was soon after adopted by all classes of labor.

The Electrician says that incandescent lamps were used forty years ago to illuminate mines. Carbon, as a vacuum, was used in the lamps, but the vacuum was not so high as that at present used, because the apparatus was not so perfect.

William H. Vanderbilt's residence in New York, occupying a whole block, had not the least sign of decoration on Evacuation Day. When the line passed it, a running fire of hisses told what the men thought of the man who said, "the people be —."

An enterprising Frenchman has invented a baby which no ordinary traveler could distinguish from the usual infant. It cries at any moment desired without the aid of pins or colic, and is used by women desiring to have a railway carriage all to themselves.

A body of 175 New Jersey teachers were lately questioned as to their views on corporal punishment. This form of correction was used by 82, but 64 thought that better results were secured by use of the rod, and the proposed repeal of law forbidding corporal punishment was declared wise by only 39.

The Earl of Devon, who owns a large estate in Southern Ireland, offers to sell out to his tenantry. THE FORCE OF HABIT.

It Was a Cold Day But She Didn't Forget to be a Woman.

Detroit Free Press.

They were coming up from Staten Island, where they had been at an entertainment. Down the bay the wind blew so hard that one of the deck hands, who was a trifle facetious, ventured to give it as his opinion that if it didn't blow directly the boat would be blown up into Greenwood cemetery.

"By gracious, this is cold!" said one man, swinging his arm around wildly.

"Indeed it is," replied a young lady who was shivering in a seal-skin sacque, "I never felt anything like it in my life."

And then they sat down, and got up and ran around, and did everything they could to keep from freezing to death until the boat landed at New York.

Then they got into an "L" train. "I don't want to go to Staten island any more," she said, with her teeth on a chatter.

"Neither do I," replied her chaperon; "unless I wear a bear-skin."

"That wouldn't keep you warm down there," she replied.

"I don't believe it would," said her gallant chaperon. "When a man goes to Staten island at this time of the year, he ought to wear a hot stove to keep him warm. In summer he might wear a cold stove to keep off mosquitoes."

"Couldn't a Staten island mosquito bite through a stove?"

"Guess he could; but if he couldn't the stove wouldn't keep off malaria; so the man would be settled anyhow. Do you feel any warmer than you did?"

"No," she replied; "I feel colder."

"So do I. Let's drop into this restaurant and warm up."

So they dropped in.

Finally the waiter came up and handed them two bills of fare.

In a few minutes the man said: "I'm very cold. Bring me a steak and a hot cup of coffee."

Then the waiter gazed interrogatively at the damsel. She looked up at the ceiling, then at the floor. A great mental struggle was going on. Finally she raised her alabaster lids, and said in a fairy-like manner as a half frozen person with chattering jaws could say: "Give me a plate of ice cream."

England's Bad Weather.

San Francisco Chronicle.

You learn in England to realize the force of the Shakespearean quotation: "For the rain it raineth every day."

Meteorologically the weather is always suggesting that strings are at very loose ends in the upper regions. It rains one hour then ceases, and seems so brood for the next over the possibility of letting down more moisture at any moment. Then it will rain hard for two hours, stop one and rain the next. This does week in week out. Then the clouds will sulk for days. They look wet and gloomy, but won't shed a drop. What they want is to catch you out of doors without your umbrella. You go out time after time with that umbrella and find it a useless incumbrance. No Englishman goes out without this umbrella.

But the American gets out of patience. So, without his umbrella, he at last ventures and is caught. An ugly black mass of cloud takes up a position directly over his head. The sky here in places does not seem over forty-five feet high. These clouds do not pour themselves all out at once. What they want is to entice you a long way from home. They send down a patter of a drizzle for a minute or two. The drops seem to say: "Oh, excuse me for really did not know you were out without your umbrella. But don't go home, we shall soon be through." So they delude you with the impression that they will stop directly. They keep you imbued with this idea until you are well moistened and then all the windows over England are opened and it pours. Just before you get home, wet to the skin, and your heels churning muddy water out of your boots at every step, the shower all at once tones down upon the mildest drizzles. The clouds break away and their red faced toperish looking English sun bursts through.

Why He Wanted a Will.

Detroit Free Press.

A colored man about 60 years of age, blind in one eye and walking with a cane, hobbled up-stairs into the office of a Griswold street lawyer yesterday and announced that he desired to make his will.

"Got much property to leave?" asked the lawyer.

"Well, sah, I've persessed of a dog, a cook-stove, a wheelbarrow, an' two flat-irons dat my fust wife left me."

"And who are you going to leave them to?"

"My darter, Nancy, ober on Indiana street. Ize married agin, you know, an' I wants to put dat property whar my present wife can't git it. She doan' git nuffin belongin' to me if I can help it." "It will cost you $5 to have a will drawn."

"Shoo! Can't cost dat."

"Yes, it will."

"Den I reckon I'll administrate on my stuff afore I die. Would dat work?"

"Certainly."

"Den I'll run de dog off, lend de wheelbarrow, pocket the flatiron, an' stan' by to rush de cook stove outer de house de fust time de ole woman goes to de grocery. Kin I git a warrant heah?"

"What for?"

"Fur assault an' battery. When de ole woman finds what I've done she'll walk all ober me, an' I might as well save time by gettin' out de warrant now."

He was directed to the proper place, and he went away saying that it would perhaps be still better to have her arrested and sent up for ninety days in advance.

A Ring in a Pig's Tongue.

Bangor Commercial.

Mr. Walter Murch, of Fast Eddington told the following story to a Commercial reporter: About seven weeks ago, I bought a pig which was about a month old. One day I got over into the pen and while there lost this ring, which you see is gold and has set in it a bloodstone. I hunted a long while for the ring, as it a peculiar value to me on account of having been a present. I finally gave up the ring for lost. The day before Thanksgiving I sent the pig to the butcher to be killed, and when he brought it back he said he found a gold ring in that pig's tongue. I didn't believe it until he produced the tongue with the ring about it as you see it. The ring encircled the tongue two and a half inches from the end, and of course almost divided that organ. Neither the hoop nor the setting were injured.

Obliging Folks.

An old negro went into a book store to buy a picture for his wife. He looked at a lot of Christmas cards, and singling out one asked the price.

"One dollar," said the clerk.

The old fellow moved on around and finding the same kind of picture in another lot, stealthily let a mouthful of tobacco spit fall on it, and then wiping it off on his sleeve, he said:

"Look heah, boss, what'll yer ax me fur dis heah damaged one?"

"Twenty-five cents."

"Dat's too much, boss tur it's dun ruint."

"Well, take it along for ten cents."

"Look heah, marster, yer couldn't get no ten cents fur dis. Jes' well gin it ter me, marster."

"Take it along then."

"Tlankee sah. Mos' bligin' folks in dis town I eber seed. Man kain' stan' 'roun' de sto's lessen da shoves p'liteness on him. Good day, sah. I wish yer mighty well."

Feeding the Birds in Norway.

Youth's Companion.

In the most of the provinces of Norway there is a pretty custom of feeding the wild birds on Christmas day. All the animals belonging to the family have double their usual dinner, and share in the great festival.

The kind-hearted peasants also fasten up wisps of oat straw all about their houses for the birds, who are quick at telling each other the news, and flocking down in great numbers to peek at the grain.

In the towns great bunches of unthreshed oats are brought to the market place, and no matter how poor the people are, they will be sure to have one bit of money saved to buy the birds a feast.

The little sheaves are fastened on the house tops and out side the windows, and nobody in Norway would frighten a bird that day, if he could help it.

Beef fat rendered in water will not harden like tallow, but will remain soft and even oily if kept in a not too cold place, is very nice for most purposes where lard is thought requisite. Jews, who eschew all hog fat, render beef fat in this most excellent way—cooking it thoroughly in water and dipping it off the top as it rises like oil.

We tried several medicines, none of which seemed to do her any good, but she continued to get worse, and finally raised large amounts of blood from her lungs. We called in a family physician, but he failed to do her any good. We then called in a physician—a most skillful professor in one of our colleges—he said that she could not get well. PRICKLY ASH BITTERS

The majority of the ills of the human body arise from a derangement of the Liver, affecting both the stomach and bowels. In order to effect a cure, it is necessary to remove the cause. Irregular and sluggish action of the Bowels, Headache, Sluggishness at the Stomach, Pain in the Back and Loins, etc., indicate that the Liver is at fault, and that nature requires assistance to enable this organ to throw off impurities.

Prickly Ash Bitters are especially compounded for this purpose. They are mild in their action and effective as a cure; are pleasant to the taste and taken easily by both children and adults. Taken according to directions, they are a safe and pleasant cure for Dyspepsia, General Debility, Habitual Constipation, Diseased Kidneys, etc., etc. As a Blood Purifier they are superior to any other medicine, cleansing the system thoroughly, and imparting new life and energy to the invalid. It is a medicine and not an intoxicating beverage.

Uncle Sam's Condition Powder
THE BEST MEDICINE NOW KNOWN FOR HORSES, CATTLE, SHEEP, HOGS, ETC., ETC.

An animal with deranged digestion, impoverished blood or diseased kidneys cannot thrive. It becomes weak, spiritless, of scraggy appearance, which renders it unsalable. It costs no more to keep sound, healthy animals that will find ready market, and shrewd farmers find it pays them to give Uncle Sam's Condition Powder freely to diseased stock, and occasionally to all; because it purifies the blood, aids digestion, stimulates the various functions to healthy secretion, and thus promotes growth, and gives a smooth, glossy coat of hair. MILCH COWS are much benefited by the occasional use of Uncle Sam's Condition Powder in slop or feed. HOGS fatten faster when it is given three or four days in succession every month or two. SHEEP—All diseases common to sheep, such as coughs, colds, scabs, etc., are relieved by this powder.
We caution all who desire a truly meritorious article to be sure and ask for Uncle Sam's Condition Powder, and accept no other as a substitute. Prepared only by T. W. EMMERT PROPRIETARY CO., CHICAGO, ILLINOIS.

About the 15th of February we purpose commencing the publication of a political edition, to be called The Republican Bulletin, provided leading Republicans respond with sufficient number of subscribers to give it a footing. It will be an eight page or sixteen column paper—double the size of our free edition. The subscription price will be one dollar per year or 75 cents for the campaign. It will contain full current news reports and be straight-out for the Republican nominees of 1884. Let us hear from leading Republicans at once.

The editor and lady acknowledge an invitation to the reception and entertainment in honor of Miss Allie E. Royce, at the residence of Dr. Chas. E. Davis, on the evening of the 29th. Our reporter speaks of it as one of the most brilliant affairs of the season. The doctor's residence was handsomely lighted and the balconies bright with chinese lanterns.

During the assembling, the band gave some of its handsomest melodies. The occasion being in token of appreciation of Miss Royce, who with her talent had so contributed to amuse and entertain our people, she was presented with a diamond pin and a copy of Will Carlton's poems. Opening march was rendered on the organ and violin by Dr. Bruns and Mr. Will Gaither, after which Dr. C. E. Davis gave the presentation speech. Mrs. C. E. Davis, solo, with quartette chorus by Mrs. Harry Pratt, Mr. Gaither and Dr. C. E. Davis. Mrs. Pratt gave three recitations, by special request, in which was displayed her finest talents. Miss Royce sang several songs finely, and her recitation of "Robert Lincoln" was especially good. Little Crystal Davis gave "Bachelor's Reverie" with pleasing effect, while the phantasy, Echo of the Ages, struck many with awe. The good night song was beautifully rendered.

There were about eighty persons present notwithstanding unfavorable weather, among whom your reporter noticed Mayor Davis, M R Baker, Capt E. Davis, Major Downie, Capt Tobien, Dr. Roberts, J H Cameron, J W Cary and their ladies, Dr WW Johnston and his two daughters, and Dr. Gibbs. Among the many who sent their regrets were Gov. Powell Clayton, Major J W True, Judge Ray, and their ladies.
