LIFE IN ASSYRIA.

Quaintly Described by a Native of That Land.

Girls Bought and Sold for Camels and Sheep-Cheapness of the Prodnets of Nature and Men live on six cents a day in Assy. ria. Assyrian women, after one hundred years of Christian labor, are bought and sold; are made to work with oxen at the plow, and have as little liberty as in the days of Cadmus Men who pay six dollars a day to live and the ladies who ride to shops in victorias thought over these things as they left the Lincoln Park Congregational church the other night, says the Chicago Herald. Amen Rasi, born on Mount Lebanon, told these things in broken English. Amen Rasi is a tall, handsome Assyrian with a skin as rich as the cinnamon silks made at the foot of the mountain on which he was born. He looked into the curious, bright eyes of girls and told them that, had they been born Assyrians, in Assyria, they could not go upon the streets unless their faces were concealed; that they could neither receive nor make a call among women without their husband's con-sent, and that if at any time, even by accident, they were seen by any man or in any way recognized one, no one would marry them. He said that once two couples, a tall man and a tall woman and a short man and a short woman, stood before a priest to be wed. The priest placed the tall man and the tall women and the short man and the short woman together and none of the four knew whether it was right or not, neither of them knowing the other. But the parents hastily objected and placed the tall man by the short woman and the short man by the tall woman, as that was the way of the contracts.

Then Mr. Rasi showed how these contracts were made. He left the pulpit and presently a man wrapped up in sich Assyrian raiment went up and sat upon the floor. Mr. Rasi came back and squatted beside him. "I would very much like," he said, "for a girl who is yours to be wife to my son Isaac." "I would be henored," re-Isaac." "I would be honored," returned the man, with a very unmistakable American accent. "How many have you?" "Three." "How much years have they?" "One is fifteen, one twenty and one twenty-five." "Don't talk to me about the twenty-five, nor the twenty; they are never fit to marry. How much do you charge for the little one?" "Five camels, four horses, three sheep and fifty dollars." "Bah! I buy one hundred women for so much." "But not little ones." "Oh. I think "But not little ones." "Oh, I think so." "Well, you can't have mine for a pent less." "I pay." But even then Issae did not get the little one, because a few minutes later Mr. Rasi returned as another man, and by doubling the price secured the girl for his son Jacob.

Then Amen Rasi looked at young men whose patent leathers cost them seven dollars and told them that people seven dollars and told them that people in Assyrie peid fifty cents for a suit of slothes. The common people, no said, paid twenty-five cents a day for house rent, three cents for twenty-five pounds of cabbage and four cents for fifty pounds of turnips. Fifty loaves of bread were turned out at a baking and men sometimes are four and five at a meal. He waited for a moment, and then turn. He waited for a moment, and then turning to a blackboard behind him said:
"They are so big," and he drew a circle that would inclose a Thanksgiving

Speaking of Assyrian cities he said that when in the gardens of Sidon the rain fell upon the orange and lemon trees and knocked the fruit upon the ground a hundred could be purchased for five cents. He said that in Damascus there are one hundred and thirty thoufifty thousand Christians and five thousand Jews. In the city there is a building haunted by John the Baptist's ghost. The door of the room in which he is said to have been beheaded is opened. The Mohammedans say that once long ago some one opened it and the Baptist's blood flowed out over the city to a depth of five inches. It was the custom for worship ers to leave their shoes outside the There were sometimes three or four hundred pairs standing in a row. and the poorer people hurried through their prayers first and then carefully selected the finest footwear in the row, thereby illustrating the great clever ness of the Assyrians.

Apia, the capital of the Samoan islands, is famous for its consumption of beer and umbrellas. It is no unusual thing to see a nearly-naked native walking hatless through the streets with a cilk umbrella spread over his head The use of the umbrella is to protect the carefully oiled and dressed native head from the effects of the sun's rays. Hair dressing is the sole toilet operation with the Samoans, and upon this they bestow a vast amount of time and ingenuity. An American about to depart from Apia asked what he should present to the wife of a chief who had entertained him. He was assured that nothing would please the lady better than as umbrella. With some misgivings as to the stock of umbrellas likely to be car ried by the merchants of Apia he vis ited a shop, and was astonished to find large collection of the best European umbrellas. He learned that they sold well at good prices, and that the natives were extremely exacting as to the quality of that particular article. As for the lady, she was delighted with the American's gift.

Cuban Backmen.

Havana has about four thousand conrevances, and the drivers are the most inscrupulous men in the business. They could give the old time hackmen at Magara Falls points and then beat them in getting fares. A traveler from Brooklyn sums up the situation in three centences: "Ride at the peril of your burse; walk at the peril of your life. If you ride they will rob you. If you at affinit to walk they will run over you."

MAUTION IN SLEEPING-CARS. Good Advice to Travelers-Look Out for

Predatory Porters. "I have learned to watch my valuables when on a sleeping-car," said a well-known Washingtonian to a New York Tribune writer, "about as closely as if I were on guard duty. The sleeping-car companies no doubt try to obtain honest men in their employ, but so ne of the porters, not content with squeezing fees out of everybody by the familiar blacking-brush and wisp-broom methods, are not above extracting at least part of their valuables in advance, if the chance offers. Last week, with my wife, I came over from Washington on a sleeping-car. Her pocketbook, which fortunately conained only silver and pennies, was a relessly left in her satchel, and that laced on the floor under the berth. In the morning the pocketbook contained only three pennies. The porter, in locking up my shoes to impart that hostly sleeping-oar shine, had taken a dyer through the satchel near by. The pocketbook was silver mounted ind worth many dollars, but the porter, well knowing that safety lay in trides, had extracted only the change and left the purse itself. There is no redress for these petty thefts. It may not have been the porter. Who knows? You were asleep. The only safe remedy, as I said, is to watch your property sharp

Three years ago I was going over from Chicago to St. Paul on a sleep-ag-car. I had obtained a lower berth, out at the end of the car. The upper ust above me had been secured by a tout man, who seemed so reluctant to neunt skyward that I at last offered to exchange with him. This offer he gratefully accepted. In the morning, after the usual sleeping-car toilet, I was horrified to find that my pocketook was gone. The obsequious porter hided my search and seemed most solic-tous, but the pocketbook and the hirty-seven dollars it contained were not to be found. I told my fat acquaintance in the lower berth of my loss. He istoned with extreme attention and interest, but said nothing. 'You don't seem very sympathetic,' I said. 'Sympathetic,' he replied. 'Of course, I am corry for you, but I was thinking of my own escape. That porter stole you wallet. He was undoubtedly after me. He knows I am the manager of a theatrical company and concluded I would have money; but our exchange of berths mixed him up and he went through the vrong man. I im sorry for you, my riend; you've lost thirty-seven dollars, but you have sered me eighteen hundred dollars. I won't offer to make up your loss, but I'll ican you fifty dollars just as long as you choose to keep

A PET PRAIRIE DOG.

Nestle Close to Him and Sleep.

A gentleman living in this city has a et which is, all things considered, one if the most affectionate and most inteligent pets in the whole country, says n Abilene (Tex.) correspondent in the st-Louis Globe-Democrat. It is nothing but a prairie dog, and prairie dogs are supposed to be rather stupid and minteresting; but this particular one, whose name is Crockett, certainly reeives a great deal of attention from all is acquaintances. He was brought to he city when he was very small and resented to a little girl, and it was exected that Crockett and Mamie would e great playmates and fast friends. Very soon, however, the prairie dog ormed the most unreasoning attachnent for Mamie's father, and it is omething wonderful and pathetic to is master's foot or his arms clasped bout it. He begs with pitiful cries to e left in the room at night and when ed time approaches he invariably neaks into some hiding place, hoping hat he may be overlooked. In the morning when Mr. R. starts to town rockett follows him to the gate and arts from him there with many regrets, rising on his haunches every ight and barking and crying alternatey as he turns the last corner. And hea the whistle sounds at noon Crocktt instantly rushes to the gate at full peed and watches for his master's comg with all the intelligence of a child. The little marmot knows the man it oves when he is three or four blocks way, and if he is alone it runs to meet im and must be taken up and ride nome on his shoulder. If any stranger hould be with him, bewever, Crockett ises on his haunchon, sniffs the air and parks angrily, and than advances a few teps and stops again to investigate and sound his disapproval. All the children the family and many other persons ave made every exercion to win the onfidence of this little creature, but in ain. He tolerages them, but all his ove is given to this one human being ut of all the world.

Treasure in the Clock. An apprentice of Mr. Gardiner's jewtry establishment, Reading, Eng., vas cleaning an old-fashioned clock a weeks ago, says the Watchmaker, eweler and Silversmith, when, to his mazement, he discovered seven sovergns, wrapped in separate pieces of aper, among the works. Smith inhe clock had belonged to an old man t Caversham, and after his death a oor woman took it to be repaired, and alled for it at the time appointed, when she was informed of the money. the was delighted by the discovery, and affered to leave a portion of the treasre for the benefit of those employed in he establishment,

A VOLOANIO ISLANDA

Mexico Has One, the Result of the Ea.Chquake Last Summer.

A party which has just returned from the head of the gulf of California, says the Chicago Globe, brings the new of the formation of a volcanic island during the earthquake of last summer. At a point near the middle of the gult. where it has always been considered the deepest, there is now an island that has for its mater an active volcano spouting fire, achos and mud. The island rises just above the surface of the water and the cone of the volcano is but a few feet above the surface of the island. An attempt was nade to land upon the new island by the party, but they found that it was simply a crist and wherever they would place foot the crust would break through and clouds of steam would rise from the orifice. The island is of undoubted volcanic origin and the hole is about fifty feet in diameter, while the cone itself covers nearly the whole of it. When they went up they noticed a furious boiling at the place, but there was no appearance of an island or a volcano. Upon their return they saw the island as it had formed, and they believe that it is constantly growing.

They made sounding around the island and they found that where there had formerly been no bottom to the gulf as far as the usual means of measure-ment is concerned, now they could find bottom within ten feet of the surface for a mile in any direction of the island. It has the appearance of a ridge and men think that the center of the gulf has been forced up by some in-ternal pressure like the folds of cloth.

FRANCE'S CHAMPAGNE.

The Yield of 1891 Valued at $25,000, 000—Care in Treating the Vintage.

The harvesting of the champagne vintage takes place in the latter part of October and the first weeks in November, and during that period the whole district of Champagne becomes as busy as a bee hive. About fifteen thousand hectares are covered with vines. The yield is estimated at $25,000,000. It is difficult for anybody who has not seen it to appreciate the extreme care taken with the champagne vintage. The grapes are plucked one by one, are se-lected according to their ripeness and often they have to be cleaned before they are put into the presses. There are two things about champagne that are not generally known. The wine is not the product of white grapes. Threefourths of the champagne vines produce black grapes only, and the almost white color of the wine is obtained through the perfection of the presses. Again, while in Bordelais and in Bourgogne each crop of grapes has its own individuality and admits of no mixing, it is quite the contrary in Champagne. There they mix several crops, each one of which contributes its own peculiar quality to the wine. The annual production of champagne wines is abundantly sufficient for the consumption of champagne in the whole world, despite what has been said to the contrary. It amounts to 11,925,000 gallons. The export of champagne wine, which in 1844-45 reached only 6,500,000 bottles, in 1890-91 was 25,000,000. The greatest consumption is in England and the United States; then come Germany, Russia and Belgium.

THE RAINBOW TROUT.

Growth in Popularity and Numbers of Gamey, Handsome Fish.

Favorable reports continue to reach the United States fish commission as to the result of planting yearling rainbow trout in streams of Missouri and Arkamsee his devotion to this one object of his affection. While Mr. R. is about the house Crockett will climb into his ap, or, being denied that privilege, will lie on the floor with his head with his affection. Regers Ark states that it Francompany, te on the floor with his head resting on last five hundred rainbow trout were received at Rogers by Prof. Scoggs, of the Silver Springs Milling Company, from the commission, and were depos-Ited in the spring stream. They now average fourteen inches in length.

This species of trout is indigenous to the Pacific slope, but several years ago it was transplanted in the waters of the central and eastern states, in many of which it has found congenial environment and bids fair to become the most desirable variety of the salmonide for pond and stream culture. It is hardy, gamey and handsome, while it possesses all the qualities of an excellent food fish. At the trout breeding stations of the fish commission at Wytheville, Pa., and Neosho, Mo., the propagation of the rainbow trout receives considerable attention, and its popularity is strikingly demonstrated by the increasing and urgent requests for this species that are constantly being received at the office of the commission.

Complexions of Long Are.

Our grandmothers, according to the traditions, took the same morbid interest in their complexions that is manifested at the present day. Everyone has heard of the famous Ninon d'Enclose and her bath of distilled dew. And there was a famous baroness in the time of Louis Philippe who lived entirely on oranges. Twelve oranges for breakfast, twelve at luncheon and twelve again at dinner, with one glass of Burgundy, and a little crust of bread. There was also the marquis de Cregny, who flourished in the last century and died far on in the nineties, and lived for the last twenty years of her earthly pilgrimage on vegetables cooked in chicken broth. Wine she renounced for hot water, sweetened, which tastes the most like nothing of anything yet concocted.

A Peculiar Fish.

A remarkable fish was recently captured off the Ardglais coast, County Down, Ireland. According to Land and Water "it was three-quarters of a pound in weight and had a head similar to that of a pike. From the gills to the tail on each side there was a bright blue band; the tops of the tail fins were also a bright blue, and around the head and shoulders there was a network of deep blue lines, which gave the fish a very comical, unnatural aspect." It is unmewn to the fishermen of that section.

YOUTH.

Why is it so many grow old too prematurely?

Said an old man: "If there is anything that will make an old man feel young it is Dr. John Bull's Saraaparilla." Yes, there is a deal of buoyancy in a bottle of this excellent remedy, and if it was more enerally used there would be fewer folks growing prematurely eld. The healing and strengthening herbs that enter into its composition make it one of the finest rejuvenating medicines that can be compounded. Said a young wife, when asked how she managed to live so happily with her husband, who was quite an old man, "I keep him youthful by giving him Bull's Sarsaparilla." It is a good thing when a feeling of old age or decreptude creeps into the system to rout it at once with Bull's Sarsaparilla. It makes the old feel young, and the young feel buoyant. An active old lady said she "couldn't keep up long when her bottle of Bull's Sarsaparilla go mpty." It's a good thing ide old people. Everyone, young or old, should counteract the evil calects of nervousness, weakness, and debility by a use of Bull's Sarsaparilla. It keeps the system in fine condition. You will sleep better,

SOIL.

The soil is wonderfully fertile, producing all crops grown in this latitude in abundance, equalling any and rivalling many of the States celebrated for their corn, wheat, oats and root crops.

TIMBER.

The State has a greater variety of timbers useful for the mechanical arts than any of her neighbors, or all the New England States combined, and with her navigable waters and railways they are easily placed on the market.

GRASSES. With over one hundred and fifty varieties of native grasses, there are eight months pasture out of the twelve, and the introduction of cultivated grasses, with all the forage plants that can be grown in greatest abundance, will make this State the promised land of the stock raiser,

EUREKA SPRINGS, ARK.

HE HISTORY of this wonderful city and its remarkable Springs could not be otherwise than interesting to any and all persons who may read this article, whether or not they are afflicted with any of the numerous diseases these waters so readily cure. "The Founts in of Youth," "The Waters of Life," which many have sought in vain, truly have been found, flowing abundantly, and free to all, from the pine-clad mountains of Northwest Arkansas.

A few years ago, the site of this city, which now comprises 960 acres. was covered with a dense forest, principally pine and oak, and inhabited by deer, turkey, bear, panther and other natives of the forest. These have disappeared, and on mountain top and in valley, have been reared, as by magic, magnificent hotels, substantial business houses and handsome residences. This city is situated in the Ozark Mountains, on the head waters of White River, and is 1,800 feet above the level of the sea. The scenery is grand and the climate is delightful. The atmosphere is pure and invigorating and free from

The Basin Spring, the first discoverer, and the most prominent among the springs of the city because of the greatest number of remarkable cures from using its wate , is situated about the centre of the city This spring was discovered in the year 1856, by Dr. Alva Jackson, a pioneer physician who lived a few miles away. While hunting in the mountains in company with his sons, one of whom had a severe attack of sore eyes, they discovered a cave above the spring, into which their dogs had run a panther. On removing the panther from the cave, the exertion bringing overheat to the boy, caused him to suffer greatly with his eves, and he bathed them in the water that trickled from the cave down the mountain side. Bathing in this water cured young Jackson's eyes, and for years after his father used it bottled in his practice as eye-water. In May, 1879, Judge Saunders, an ex-member of the Arkansas Legislature, being almost helplessly afflicted with erysipelas, and believing this spring to be the one mentioned to him by the Indians and Spaniards as far back as 1838, by the advice of Dr. Jackson, resorted thither and camped with his family. In ten weeks he was entirely restored. In July following, the first log cabin was built. From this the fame of Eureka Springs, the greatest health resort in the world, has continued to spread, and thousands come each year drink, bathe and go away cured or bene-

The population of Eureka Springs is 5,000. It is a city of the first class, and has a full set of officers. The peace and order of the city is good, and none need feel any hesitation in coming here, as all are amply protected in person and property. The people are largely church-going, there being seven church houses in the city.

The citizens, knowing the purity and curative properties of the waters, and the advantages to be gained by the healthy location, have resolved to make their city an educational centre, and the work is already begun. The Inter-State Summer Normal and Educational Assembly have erected a building with a seating capacity of 5,000, in which a Normal School is held each summer, and attended by teachers from all parts of the United States, The State District Normal for Northwest Arkansas, is permanently located hero. It is in session five months in each year, and is held in the public school building, ¿, handsome brick structure, creditable to any city. The public schools are under the surervision of an efficient Professor, a man of knowledge and noted for his ability as an educator. Projects are on foot to establish a college, which no doubt will be done at an early day. The city is lighted by gas, but the Electric Light & Street Railway Company, who are now pushing the street railway to remote parts of the city, will in a short time put in electric lights. A system of water works and sewerage has been planned and will be completed at the earliest possible period, part of the sewer pipes already having been laid. A company has purchased 1,700 acres of ground south of and adjoining the city, and are having it beautifully laid off with drives and walks preparatory to building a Sanitarium which will ke constructed on the highest type of modern architecture, and managed by a corps of able physicians. The Crescent Hotel, one of the finest and most commodious hotels in the Southwest, a perfect structure of grandeur and beauty, is situated on Crescent Mountain. The Southern, another pleasantly arranged and commodious hotel, stands near the Basin Spring. There are many other pleasant and conveniently located hotels and boarding houses in different parts of the city, where good board can be had at low rates. The city is abundantly supplied from the surrounding country with the greatest variety of fresh vegetables, and the sweetest and best of fruits; the market is filled with a choice selection of various kinds of meats, and the numerous grocery establishments furnish any and all kinds of provision usually found in city groceries, so the tables of Eureka Springs can be cheaply and readily supplied with all the dainty and nourishing food that any appetite would require. Visitors can live cheaper here than at any health resort of the kind in the world, either at the hotels, or boarding houses, or by renting a cottage and keeping house.

The city is supplied with a number of dry goods, furniture, hardware, book and drug stores that furnish customers with all kinds of vares each in their line, at the lowest prices. Two daily, and three weekly newspapers are published in the city, and are always well filled with news and items of interest that keep the people informed on the occurrences of the day. Two millinery establishments, managed by competent women, supply the best quality and latest styles in millinery. The Citizen's Bank is presided over by a polite and accommodating cashier, who is always ready to wait upon customers. Jewelry stores furnish prevailing styles of jewelry and silverware. Laundries, boot and shoe shops, blacksmith and wagon shops turnout the best of work. A flouring mill and a yeast factory produce flour and yeast that make light, snowy bread, which together with cakes. pies, etc., can be had fresh at different bakeries The bath houses in the city are fitted up in first-class style, have male and female attendants, and accommodations for any and all kinds of baths. Busses, carriages and transporation wagons are ready at the Eureka Springs Railway depot, in the northern limit of the city, to convey passengers and baggage to any part of the city. In spite of the two saloons located in the city, quiot generally reigns in so much that drunken men or disturbances are seldom seen on the streets. The onyx factory occupies a large building near the depot, and will furnish home and foreign trade with jewelry, ornaments, etc., made from the onyx stone found in large quantities in the mountain caves. Building rock and marble of various colors, are found in abandance within and around the city. Small quantities of silver, lead, zinc, etc., have been found in and near the city, and miners from the West and other places say the indications are that large deposits are imbedded in these the indications are that large deposits are imbedded in these mountains.

The professional men of the city are ranked among the best of the country. Talented and well educated ministers fill the pulpits, physicians and surgeons of skill and long practice are ready to wait upon the sick, and lawyers of experience and ability officiate at the bar. Merchants are polite and obliging, and the citizens in general are kind and social, and it has been said that there is no place on the globe where strangers meet with such welcome, and are made to feel so completely at home as in Eureka Springs. The Basin, Harding, Sweet, Crescent, Grotto, Dairy, Magnetic, Mystic, Oil, Arsenic, Cave, Cold and Little Eureka are the names of a few of the springs, the whole number within the city limits being about sixty. The waters of these springs are used all the year round and cure or benefit almost every disease that flesh is heir to. Rheumatism, neuraigia, serofula, cancer, fever sores, eczema, catarrh, kidney disease, dropsy, sore eyes, asthma, dyspepsia, female complaints, paralysis, hay fever, general debility, etc., are cured or materially benefitted. Invalids, who are not able to go around, will find all the pleasant company they may desire, though coming here perfect strangers, they scon make acquaintances. Those who can walk will find others to ramble with and pass the time looking up the many natural and curious places in the vicinity. Everygody carries a cup used for drinking and a tin bucket, or a large glass bottle swung by a hardle to carry water to their homes. In the crowds that gather around the springs, only kindly faces are seen and pleasant words heard. The preliminary steps at meeting are the questions as to whence you came, when you arrive I, how long you will stay, your malady and your hame. To the lonely stranger, miles from home, sick and longing for sympathy this is pleasant. Thousands of visitors come and go each year, and many who are cured settle here for life. The population is increasing, wealth capital a
