Mr. Lincoln was scarcely in his grave before Thaddeus Stevens had the reins of government in his hands. He was the boss of Congress, to an even greater extent than Julius Caesar was ever the boss of the Roman Empire. And now that the great Lincoln, who felt so kindly toward the South of his birth, was out of the way, Stevens saw his chance to wreak his vengeance upon the already prostrate and bleeding people.

Seeing that President Johnson had laid plans to carry out Lincoln's reconstruction policy, Stevens at once inaugurated measures by which to defeat such plans, and the measures which he succeeded in getting Congress to pass, degraded the South to his heart's content. Johnson did his utmost to break the power of his influence, but to no avail. The man living in the little brick house, not far from the capital, was the man who was indeed President, and he had his hand on the throat of the South.

"With malice toward none; with charity for all; with firmness in the right, as God gives us to see the right, let us strive on to finish the work we are in." Such were the words of Lincoln at the conclusion of his inaugural speech, and had not the assassin's bullet cut short the right, let us strive on to finish the work we are in.

claimed Mrs. Randall, as she saw her room-window and saw Frank Leonard arrest her husband and lead him off to the courthouse, in a most brutal manner.

After keeping the old Southerner in jail for five hours, denying him the privilege of communicating with his family, he was brought before a renegade officer for trial, charged with "disrespect toward one, Jinks Jefferson, a colored gentleman," and was fined $25.

Intelligence, nobility of soul, unsullied character—these constituted Lemuel Randall's make-up. All might go before he would surrender his honor. Seeing himself at the mercy of the merciless oppressors, he paid his fine, and returned home with a saddened heart—full of awful anguish.

A New Political Richmond.

St. Louis, Post-Dispatch

Little Rock, Ark., April 8.—Grappling with the trusts as he grappled the plow handles 15 years ago, a new "Richmond has arisen" in the Arkansas political arena whose advancement during the last few years has been phenomenal and whose aspiring eyes are fixed upon the executive mansion two years hence.

This young man is Robert L. Rogers, born in this state three years after the close of the civil war. While only 36 years old, he has already caused a stir in the present political regime, beginning with the time when, as "Bob" Rogers, he left a country lawyer and took to the law.

At the present the pear is the only fruit grown to any extent in the dwarf form. A few growers have orchards of dwarf pear trees reaching commercial proportions. These are most numerous in southern Michigan. Another and more considerable number of dwarf pear trees are being planted in the orchards of the present day. The reason for the neglect of the dwarf is not far to seek. They are dwarfed by the neglect of the dwarf.

man suitable for the office of sheriff. It is not usually a man of clerical ability to make an efficient collector. On the other hand the man qualified to make a good collector is usually a man who would not make a good sheriff; in short as I have said before the duties of the two offices are repugnant.

I have only to cite the people of Boone, of my own, or any other county in this State to incumbents of their sheriff's office, to convince them of the error of my view.

In 1897 Carl Ly, Democrat, this, I separated off and collected upon a salary, and salary was less than office. Madison's larger than that of this case I have allowed of sheriff and collector, all the fees of his respective office, that each might certainly be a paying one.

I should have introduced this bill two years ago, and refrained from doing so, solely because I was an absolutely new man in Madison county affairs and feared that her county indebtedness might make such a bill unjust at that time. Now that I am acquainted with them, I know that the bill would have been proper then and that is proper now. In my own collection, greater than can be by the mere increase in people wealth, and I think people would be glad to change to be a stranger who had been a collector.

John Tharp died this morning at 1:40 o'clock after months of suffering from consumption. Those who knew John, knew him as a quiet good citizen who was pleasant with every one he met and gave offense to none.

On Sunday morning about 1 o'clock fire was discovered in the store building occupied by Mr. Catron near the O. C. C. depot. The building was completely demolished, and for a while it looked very dangerous for other houses immediately adjoining. The water supply was not sufficient to keep back the flames, for the reason, as we are informed that this part of the city has only a two inch main.

Mayor Eason has the reputation of being a man who would divide a loaf with anyone whom he found in distress, but if there is one to whom he would extend a courtesy before he would to another that one is an ex-Confederate soldier who has fallen in hard lines. A fellow knowing this weakness approached him this morning and asked for assistance, telling the mayor that he belonged to a certain regiment of Kentucky cavalry under Brig. Gen. Pickens. The captain had been there himself and knew there was no such thing as a regiment of Kentucky cavalry in his division of the Confederate army. One query after another convinced him that the man was a pretender, and having as strong a contempt for a counterfeit article as he has respect for a genuine one, he told this bogus soldier the shortest way to the depot.

He carried an open letter in his hand, and I noted that his face was a strained, tense look and that his eyes were perfectly pallid.

Presently he stopped in front of a chair opposite. After a second's hesitation, he leaned over and thrust the letter into my fingers.

"Read it, Dick, and for God's sake, tell me what I'm to do."

The letter ran:

Charity Hospital, Feb. 10.
My Dear Mr. Thompson:—I am under my care, a patient in whom you will recognize the wife supposed the dead for many years. Briefly, the story is this:—Seven years ago, I left your house in an impulsive moment—she says you will remember the details well enough—so I passed them over. The only thing clear to her seems to be the recollection of a heavy snow storm and I laid his palm over the she was insufficiently clothed. The bitter cold, someone's door, hours of distraction, realized then, a sense of food, most statue-like, waiting through all the moment, then broke the despair in him, as he uttered:—"I have just learned that I have a living wife—the woman who deserted me in a fit of petty temper—the woman whom I mourned as dead—whom I honored and cherished in my home while she made it hers! There's no human law now to hold me to her. There is a law that will give me my freedom. I—"

Elsie interrupted him with a deprecative gesture. "There is a divine law," she said in a tone of finality. Thompson did not speak for several seconds. Afterwards, he said, dully:—"You are right in this—as in everything. I shall, of course, do what is right."

"You will do your duty, Jack, I am sure of that," she returned in a low tone. Elsie rose as she spoke, and a few moments later, we took our leave. At the foot of the steps, we came face to face with a special messenger. "Mr. Thompson live here, sir?"

"He does. Anything wrong?" "Yes. A woman just died at the Charity Hospital. She—"

"Yes, I know. Three doors to the left,—up this flight."

Elsie had entered the coupe and was waiting for me. "To the Metropolitan Opera House," I told the driver. She looked at me in hurt bewilderment. "Oh no—not there—not now!" she cried, a quick glance leaping to her eyes.

"The proofs I have in mine and held myself. I am right," I said, "I found out that the man is dead. But this belongs to him and—to"

He was to be corrected.

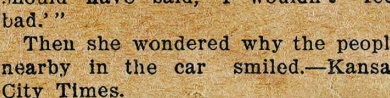

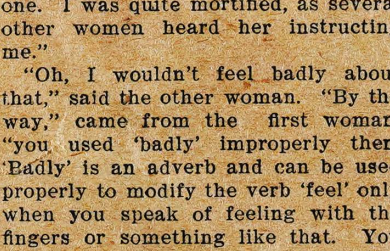

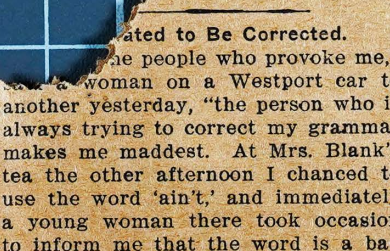

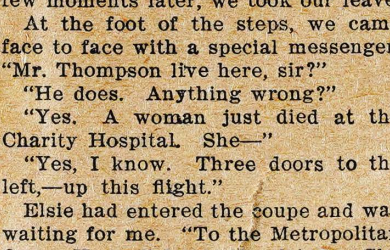

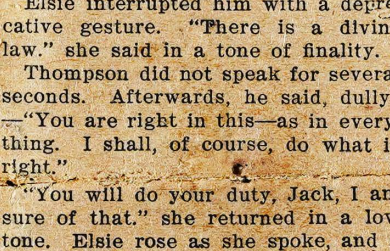

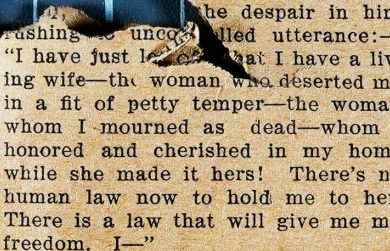

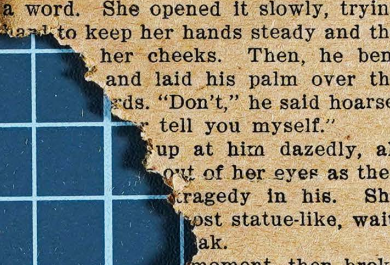

"The people who provoke me," said a woman on a Westport car to another yesterday, "the person who is always trying to correct my grammar makes me maddest. At Mrs. Blank's tea the other afternoon I chanced to use the word 'ain't,' and immediately a young woman there took occasion to inform me that the word is a bad one. I was quite mortified, as several other women heard her instructing me."

"Oh, I wouldn't feel badly about that," said the other woman. "By the way," came from the first woman, "you used 'badly' improperly then. 'Badly' is an adverb and can be used properly to modify the verb 'feel' only when you speak of feeling with the fingers or something like that. You should have said, 'I wouldn't feel bad.'"

Then she wondered why the people nearby in the car smiled.—Kansas City Times.

Our townspeople were deeply grieved last Monday morning when it became known that Mrs. Anna Squier, one of this city's best beloved mothers had passed away during the early morning. At the time of her death the deceased was 55 years of age and has resided in this city continuously for a number of years. It cannot be said that she was not a loving and observant mother because in the lives of all her children one can see the tender care with which she has prepared all to enter upon life's pathway. For several months past she has been confined to her room suffering from a complication of diseases and her tubercular disease. Master helped her in this hour of need to bear the pain and suffering in a martyr-like manner and when the end came she passed into the great beyond as calmly as a little babe going to sleep.

Several years ago her husband died very suddenly and at that time her great faith in the Master of all human Destiny helped her to bear her sorrow and not once did her faith desert her. Since that time her health failed gradually and at last she was called home.

The deceased is survived by four daughters, all of whom make this city their home. One daughter, Mrs. A. Strode was not in the city at the time of her mother's demise but she arrived last Monday evening.

The funeral was held from the family residence on Linwood avenue last Tuesday afternoon and was largely attended by the friends of the family. Rev. Chesnut conducted the services after which interment was made in the I. O. O. F. cemetery.

The fact that the chief engineer, with his surveying party, is now in the vicinity of Heber shows that the route from Leslie to Searcy is now being surveyed, as the party would not go to Heber if it were running a line to this city. Council Meeting.

An adjourned meeting of the City Council was held last Monday evening at the council rooms in the Jones building with Mayor Wood in the chair and all aldermen present.

The bonds of Mayor Wood and City Clerk Homer Porch, were read and approved.

Mayor Wood then stated that the election of a member on the Board of Public Affairs was next in order to take the place of W. E. Bradley whose term had expired. The names of Capt. T. F. Hawley, Nick Kizer and W. E. Bradley, were submitted and after eight ballots had been taken Capt. Hawley was chosen. The cause of so many ballots was on account of the rumor that Mr. Hawley was opposed to the building of a public square on Main street. He was sent for and made a statement to the members that he was in favor of any improvement that would advance the standing of Eureka Springs. His talk was well received and the next vote was unanimous. Capt. Hawley is one of this city's most progressive citizens and we are sure that the trust reposed in him will be guarded zealously.

The clerk was instructed to buy a new set of books to keep the minutes of the council proceedings in, also one to register scrip that is appropriated.

The mayor suggested that the council join him some time in the near future and inspect the city jail. On motion the chief of police was instructed to keep the jail in repair.

The meeting then adjourned to meet next Monday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

Alderman Johnson arose and asked the councilmen to state their position in regard to the appointment of a street commissioner.

Aldermen Mc Harry and Allen were both in favor of employing a commissioner and suggested that the milk inspector ordinance be repealed and the office of street commissioner be created. On motion of Willis the matter was referred to the ordinance committee who were instructed to draft an ordinance repealing the Milk inspector bill and to draft one creating the office of street commissioner.

The chief of police was ordered to serve notice on the owners of the steps leading from Main to Spring street ordering them to keep the steps in repair.

A motion was made asking that bids for the city printing be referred to the board of public affairs.

Action on this motion was deferred until the next meeting.

It was decided at this meeting to have the regular meetings on the first and third Mondays of each month.

Labor Day.

We like the spirit in which Eureka Springs observed Labor Day. The Civil Improvement Society may well be proud of having inaugurated the occasion and brought so much interest to bear on its observance. It shows that at least in one thing we are united and that is in a City Beautiful.

Not only on the main thoroughfares were the volunteer workers busy on Tuesday, but yards in the very outskirts of the city bear the impress of the day's work. There was a general cleaning up of back yards, as well as front, which goes to show that it was not a mere pretence but an honest desire of each individual to be thorough in what he or she did.

Eureka Springs has no place for the pessimist. Its citizens are optimistic of its future and they know the quickest way to bring success is to work for it. Labor Day once a year does a heap of good. Now lets all keep it up by having individual labor days oftener.

Labor Day.
Pursuant to the call of Professor C. S. Barnett, president of the Civic Improvement Association almost every citizen took some part in the general clean-up which our city received last Tuesday. Mayor Wood was the first to evince interest and he started the campaign by proclaiming the 18th as a holiday and called upon all to make Eureka Springs a more beautiful city.

The elements seemed against the movement and Old Sol's bright rays were not in evidence to help cheer the many workers who were on hand at an early hour to commence the work of cleaning the streets, alleys, and reservations. E. M. Bare was appointed superintendent of all the various forces and it seemed as if he was everywhere at the same time directing as to how the rubbish should be disposed of. The record which he made last year in a similar capacity was enough to give evidence to the fact that his selection this year would meet with general approval.

The school children were on hand and were put to work at various springs where the dirt soon disappeared. Taken all in all, the mammoth undertaking was a success and the orators arriving at the reading

Mayor Wood made a talk on this subject and recommended that some action be taken in regard to a fund to be appropriated by the council for those who come to this city without funds and ask aid from our citizens. The mayor's stand on this question is a good one as it will obviate the trouble that our citizens are put to daily by those who are in destitute circumstances.
