TALK FROM A DEMOCRAT

South Must Quit Looking

At Politics Through One Loophole—Chas. S. Barrett Gives His Ideas As to How the South Can Prosper.

The following from Uncle Remus' Home Magazine is so true and has such an important bearing even up here in northwest Arkansas, and coming from the lips of an avowed Democrat, it may be read with less prejudice than if coming from Republican lips, that we give it circulation in our columns with the comments of the Home Magazine editor:

He who would know and lead the southern farmer must have the wisdom of the serpent, the harmlessness of the dove and the guile of the master-politician without the latter's inevitable leaning toward hypocrisy.

You would have fingers to spare, if you tried to tell on one hand the number of men in America possessing this knowledge and this power that combine the penetration of the wizard and the intuition of the woman. Among them is Charles S. Barrett, president of the National Farmers' Union. That organization has a paid membership of more than two million farmers, rich, poor and indifferent, through the southern states.

And the farmer, being three-fourths of the population, ought to, if he does not, rule the southern states.

The average provincial Governor or congressman lays claim to rare familiarity with the moods and tenses of this strange human product of industry and isolation.

Discredited reputations or the frenzy with which they agonize to hold their jobs expose the futility of their assertions.

Barrett is most different.

He combines two of the rarest traits in current affairs.

He is a straw that shows which way the wind is blowing.

He is an adept at shaping the wind and giving it direction and efficiency.

He is next to the earth when it comes to speaking about the southern farmer. He has the sharp, biting, penetrating wit that comes from the earth. He has the delicately poised judgment that sorts out like lightning the essential from the negligible. He has the fearlessness to see through and set down a political or a commercial Pharisee. Himself a pioneer, he has the courage to defend the trailblazer when the rest of the populace is sneering at him and answering his appeal for progress by turning the dogs loose on him.

Barrett is the commander-in-chief of more than 2,000,000 farmers, representing farmers of the old and new south.

He feels their pulse with a delicate sixth sense, and he thinks they believe in and need political breath and tolerance.

I showed him the two last editorials that had appeared in "Uncle Remus"—The Home Magazine" regarding non-sectionalism in southern politics and presumed on an intimate acquaintance to ask his opinion.

Barrett has a trick of focussing his eyes on a distant part of the landscape and then bringing them around suddenly on you with a glance that compels. That is what he did, and then he answered, a little slowly at first, as is his habit:

"Political intolerance, looking at politics through just one knot-hole, has erected a Chinese wall around the south. It rests with the progressive southerner to give justification to that wall or forthwith lower it.

"The south is today the richest portion of the nation, but," still more slowly, "what—can—she—show—for—that—great—national—wealth?"

"Big development since the Civil war, yes, big revenue from the cotton crop, to be sure; multiplying factories, of course; a growing domestic, interstate and foreign trade, without a doubt.

"But that is merely scratching the surface; we have never reached the subsoil.

"And we will never reach the subsoil until we have absolute, unquestioned, unqualified, political freedom and independence of utterance in the southern states.

"They are making a new tariff in Washington now. They are slicing away at the things the south consumes at the things the south produces every hour and every day.

"Is the south helping in the process. Not perceptibly. The south is not within seeing distance of the operating table. A few southerners, purely for appearance's sake, are allowed in the committee rooms. But the man who thinks they can affect the framing of a tariff that comes into the lives of every man, woman and child in the southern states, is either willfully deceiving himself or his ignorance commands our pity.

"When we get through juggling and slicing and slashing, the things we eat, the things we wear, the things we produce will have another market value; in all probability, it will be higher for the first two, lower for the last.

"And the south's hands are tied behind its back so far as any active opposition is concerned."

"Still we can protest," was suggested.

"Yes," flashed back, the words coming lightning fast as he warmed up, and his arm stretched out in passionate gesture, "We can protest; don't you forget that.

"But what does it amount to when you leave the gag off a man's mouth and tie his hands behind his back?"

"We can spout and we ARE spouting. Some of our glorious and patriotic southern statesmen are filling up volumes of the 'Congressional Record' with squeals about the 'down trodden farmer' and the 'emasculated constitution' and the 'eternal verities' and that sort of rot, which sounds mighty well at home—particularly if your fences are shaky.

"However, I assume some of

A fire-mist and a planet;
A crystal and a cell,
A jelly fish and saurian,
And a cave where the cave men dwell.
Then a sense of law and beauty,
A face turned from the clod.
Some call it evolution,
And others call it God.

A haze on the fair horizon;
The infinite, tender sky:
The ripe rich tints of the cornfields
And the wild geese sailing high;
And all over upland and lowland
The sign of the golden rod.
Some of us call it Autumn,
And others call it God.

Like tides on a crescent sea-beach,
When the moon is new and thin,
Into our hearts high yearnings
Come welling and surging in,
Come from the mystic ocean
Whose rim no foot has trod
Some of us call it longing,
And others call it God.

A picket frozen on duty—
A mother starved for her brood;
Socrates drinking the hemlock;
And Jesus on the road;
And millions that homeless and nameless
The straight, hard pathway trod;
Some call it consecration,
And others call it God.

IT WAS A GREAT BATTLE

Turkey Foot Tribe No 62

Ambushed the Other Tribes—Bring Home Many Scalps and Much Plunder From the Pine Bluff Battle Ground

The Grand Meeting of the Order of Redmen was held at Pine Bluff last week and our local lodge, Turkey Foot Tribe No. 62, all Eureka Springs boomers, and every one a scout who knows every nook and cranny of the wilds of Order of Redmen went down to the state meeting where over 500 braves assembled to sing war dances and council over matters and things for the best interest of the warriors.

War paint, feathers, tomahawks and pipes of peace were in evidence and Pine Bluff fairly outdid herself to do honors to this great order. There were war dances, barbecues, pow wows ghost dances, parades and feats of skill and excellence both to entertain as well as promote efficiency of the membership and stimulate a healthy pride in all that pertains to this rapidly growing order.

One of the main features of the meeting was a competitive one of teams in initiative work for which a prize of $100 was offered. For months Turkey Foot Tribe No. 62, of Eureka Springs, has had its eyes set to secure this prize. Many a pow wow have they had over it and many a scalp has been raised in practicing for it. But Little Rock, Fort Smith, Pine Bluff and other teams were working also, hence they would take all the strength, endurance and strategy of the whole local tribe to corral the trophy.

But true to the inspiration of their Ozark fastness, and the nerve and brain building powers of the springs near which their wigwams are placed, they did the work so well that they captured the first prize and the hearty endorsement of all the braves assembled. In fact so well was the team work done, and so impressive was every feature, that so soon as it was over, Dr. Thompson of Pine Bluff, presented to the captain of our local team, twenty dollars in cash. And further he said, in order to keep up the interest and faithful team work he would make a grand prize to be given to the team who could win the state prize three times in succession. He did not state what the prize would be, but being a very rich man and a very enthusiastic Redman, he assured them it would be worthy the effort of any body of men to secure.

One of the specially impressive features of the Turkey Foot Tribe's work was the musical accompaniment by our townsmen P. D. Fallis. Mr. Fallis played a piano accompaniment—conveying in music all the weird, uncanny, strange, solemn, bold, wild and savage, as well as sweet our congressmen are doing the best they can under the circumstances.

"But their best isn't worth THAT!" and he derisively snapped his fingers. "It doesn't stay what these protesting gentlemen call the 'hand of the ruthless despoiler' and it will never stay the hand of the despoiler ruthless or otherwise—

"Whether it's tariff revision, regulation of trusts or any other question."

"And your contention—?" was the question.

"My contention is just this," he snapped back, "the helplessness of the south with regard to the tariff is merely illustrative of the helplessness of the south with regard to federal appropriations and the shaping of every national policy, imperialism, the widening of Peachtree creek, or the construction of the Panama canal.

"And we are going to keep on being helpless, and getting a worse case of political paralysis, just as long as the north thinks we are hidebound down here in a political way.

Just as long as we give out the impression that we arrive at our political convictions by tradition and prejudice and not by logic and merit, and that we absolutely refuse to listen to any save one side of presidential campaigns, we can just make up our minds to delay our own development and thwart our own progress.

"I am not talking for or against Democracy, for or against Republicanism, Socialism or any given political creed.

"But I am insisting upon non-sectionalism in politics, upon freedom to follow our convictions based on reason and not on obsolete prejudice and traditions.

We are just beginning to see the dawn of this era in the South. Yesterday, it was apostasy, it was treachery to talk of such things; today the people are classifying as Bourbons and reactionaries the individuals who would quell such talk.

"Just how much does the average voter know regarding the intrinsic merits of presidential campaigns?"

"Mighty little!

The press of the South, whether sincerely or not, is Democratic. It reflects in the mass, Democratic conditions. It suppresses any other contentions.

The same thing applies to Southern politicians. They never discuss fairly the tenets of any save one party in the South.

"The farmers of Indiana and Ohio hear both sides. They can choose on which side lies their interests.

"What about the farmers of Georgia? That's a fair question. Is their any satisfactory answer to it?"

"Did you ever think that the Civil War was fought throughout on the Southern side, by a rank and file with not a cent's interest in slavery and its perpetuation?"

Did you ever think that had the Eureka Springs is the cleanest town in the country. Let us continue to keep her so.

One of the things Eureka Springs should always have is a sane monster Fourth of July celebration that would draw people here from a radius of one hundred miles.

Please take notice that the peerless statesman, W. J. Bryan, is getting on good terms with prohibition. When it becomes sufficiently popular W. J. will be its central figure.

The man who exploits his own business or reputation at the expense of the city's good name or by giving his home town a black eye, is on the level with the proverbial bird that befouls its own nest.

An old bachelor lawyer residing in an old New England community bought a pair of socks and found attached to one a paper with these words: "I am a young lady of twenty, and would like to correspond with a bachelor with a view of matrimony." The name and address were given. The bachelor wrote, and in a few days got the reply: "Mamma was married twenty years ago. Evidently the merchant of whom you bought those socks did not advertise, or he would have sold them long ago. My mother handed me your letter and said possibly I might suit. I am eighteen.

An observant stranger coming to Eureka Springs cannot fail to be impressed with its uniqueness and to admire its natural and artistic beauties. The cities which have the favors of Dame Nature lavished upon them as has this one are scarce, and the people who have builded this city have well followed the lines which nature has provided for their lead. The substantial and artistic buildings here, the thrift and aggressive spirit abound on every hand, the splendid educational and moral advantages recognized here, and the cordiality of the citizens certainly speak volumes for the well being of this city. It is not to be wondered at that many thousands of health seekers and rest seeker from all over the country resort to Eureka Springs at all the seasons of the year and are delighted with what they find here.

DOING AS WELL AS HE CAN.

Many papers are severely criticizing Governor Donaghey for all the ills that befall the state. This is unjust and unkind. It is much easier to carp and criticize than to do. Upon Gov. Donaghey rests a great responsibility and many evils piled up by the Davis machine. We believe Gov. Donaghey is doing the best he can with the many obstacles he has to meet. Surely he has done better so far than any governor of Arkansas for many years. We believe he means to give Arkansas an honest business administration that will be to the best interests of all sections of the state. Of course his administration will be democratic and must defend and cover up as much of the rottenness of past administrations as possible; still he has started out well and deserves praise.

A GRACEFUL EXECUTIVE ACT.

The appointment by Governor Donaghey of a Republican member of the State Capital Commission is one that can be commended by all reasonable minded citizens of Arkansas.

It is a step in the right direction and is calculated to give a kindlier and more generous feeling between the two parties. It is a distinct innovation, and a recognition of a rapidly growing minority as well as the establishing of a precedent in Arkansas politics. In selecting Hon. H. L. Remmel, Governor Donaghey, while paying a just recognition to a majority in value, of the tax payers of the state, also showed his good business sense, for Harmon L. Remmel stands today as one of the most progressive, shrewdest, longheaded business men of Arkansas. It was a statesman-like act in Gov. Donaghey to appoint an upright, aggressive, popular Republican on the State Capitol Commission. It will do more to take the capital building out of politics than anything he could have done. It was a graceful act, worthy of a statesman, and we willingly accord him the deserved commendation.

LET'S BE SANE.

Another Fourth of July is close at hand. A day that fills more graves, leaves more cripples and causes more heart aches and sorrow than any of the modern battles. Can we not celebrate the birth of our nation without indulging in dangerous, annoying and nerve racking explosives. We hope the city council will forbid the use of fire-crackers, dynamite and fireworks on the streets. If they must be used in order to express the patriotism of men and youths (which we do not believe) restrict them to the auditorium grounds. This, at least, will save the nerves of hundreds of weak and delicate people who are health seekers in our resort and who will appreciate and commend such thoughtfulness and consideration.

The Times believes in celebrating the natal day of our great country. The growing youth can have no better way of learning the lesson of patriotism, devotion and loyalty and early history of our country than in these celebrations. But we think the less of fire and noise and dangerous explosives the better. They bring sorrow, mangled bodies and blasted hopes and do nothing toward building of the spirit of love of country. Let us celebrate, but let us do so sanely.

THE PRACTICAL PATRIOT OF TODAY

We sometimes think that the greatest disgrace in connection with American civilization lies in the niggardly salaries doled out to school teachers the country over. These men and women have spent years in preparing themselves for their task; their work is of the most self-sacrificing nature, taking out of them every ounce of vitality, and usually ending by making them unfit for any other occupation; they have charge of the whole American people, as it were, in the plastic, formative period of their existence; the very ideals of the republic depend upon them in no small degree—and yet we leave them at the mercy of cheap politicians, and pay them as if they were automobile chauffeurs. Even the most devoted teacher is a real patriot, working away with unselfish, unflagging—and usually unrewarded—devotion; expending an amount of zeal, energy, patience and intelligence that would bring much more substantial rewards in any other profession.

There is a lot of sentimental gush written about children, but in reality there are few angels among them; and the school teachers have to deal tactfully with some very unangelic phases of developing humanity. School teachers seldom say these things for themselves; they can't do it very well. The most striking thing about any meeting of educators is the absence of expression along these lines; the talk is all about how to improve the schools, and so forth; seldom of how to improve the lot of the teacher.—Home Magazine.

EUREKA SPRINGS HAS BOTH KINDS

The following clipping from an exchange is so true to life, and applies so well to "our city" as well as where it was written that we re-produce it. Eureka Springs has both kinds.

"There are sure to be two classes of men in any community. There are those who 'live in the town,' and those who 'make the town their home.' We are aware that the terms are frequently used interchangeably, but there is a broad difference in their meaning. The man who lives in a town levies on it for his daily bread and sleeps in it at night. Whatever altruistic impulses he has are expended in mowing his own lawn or wiping the dishes for his wife. He lives for himself and his home; any appeal for his co-operation in an enterprise of general interest meets with a stony refusal from him. On the other hand is the man who makes the town his home. He is keenly interested in the adornments which added to his home in the way of parks and public buildings and helps in adding them. He wants to know who sits at the head of the table in the government; he is concerned for the welfare of the boarders on the second floor; he attends caucuses and school meetings and works in the church, and adds the power of his influence to every movement which concerns the town's good. There are many agencies at work at the business of converting the first class of men into the second, but the most effective is undoubtedly the church. It broadens a man's sympathies, teaches him to regard every man as his brother and the town as his home."

to Rigidly Enforce Pension Laws.

Little Rock.—The state auditor will rigidly enforce the state pension laws. He is mailing out to county clerks a letter containing suggestions along that line. It is claimed that heretofore county clerks have been in the habit of sending certified lists of pensioners without much investigation, usually using the same list sent in the year previous. As the result pensions have been paid to dead men and to men outside the state, which is contrary to law.

Vehicle Tax Passed Over Veto.

Pine Bluff.—At a special meeting of the city council here, by a unanimous vote of all the aldermen present, Ordinance No. 983, amending section 743 of Ordinance 757, which was vetoed by the mayor several days ago, was passed. The mayor reiterated what he had said in his veto regarding the effect of the ordinance, but the councilmen with little argument, passed it over his head. The new ordinance provides among other things, that all wheeled vehicles in this city should be taxed.

Failed to Protect Taxpayers.

Little Rock.—The recent legislature having failed to appropriate money for the purpose of refunding taxes erroneously paid into the state treasury this year, the state auditor has informed county clerks that they need not send in certified copies of orders made by the county courts in such orders. No steps can be taken until the next legislature meets.

Prominent Jurist is Dead.

Helena.—Judge J. M. Hanks, 78 years of age, one of Helena's most prominent citizens, died very suddenly recently. As a young man he was active in politics, serving several terms as circuit clerk of Phillips county and two terms in the National Congress.

Crop Planting is Being Retarded.

Gillett.—The continuous wet and cold weather is greatly retarding the cotton crop. The wet weather is also delaying the planting of rice. Potatoes and oats are doing well, but all other crops have been injured by the cold, wet spell.

Nine Years of Liberty Ended.

Texarkana.—Deputy Sheriff John Strange and Deputy Constable Melvin Anderson of the West Side have arrested and jailed Ben Walters, a negro who broke jail here nine years ago and who had been at large ever since.

Pleasant Ridge

Health is very good out this way.

We have a fine Sunday school at Pleasant Ridge.

Ora Ferguson is sick with slow fever. We all hope he will soon recover. He is reported getting along nicely.

Henry Hottenhaur has been selected to teach the school at Pleasant Ridge and everybody is looking forward to a successful term.

Harvest is almost here—wheat and oats are looking fine, and the prospect for apples, peaches and berries are splendid.

Mr. Wickham's daughter and daughter-in-law have returned home after a pleasant two weeks' visit here.

W. D. Hicks' sister-in-law and husband came down from Kansas City to spend a couple of weeks in the Ozarks. They like the country fine.

Mrs. Prentice who has been an invalid for more than eight months passed away on the last day of May. The family have the sympathy of the whole neighborhood.

MODERN WOODMEN MEMORIAL DAY

In An Appropriate Manner

Crescent Chapter No. 11 of This City Observed Last Sunday—A Large Attendance of Friends and Citizens of the Order—Uniform Rank Display—Splendid Music and Highly Appropriate Addresses Features of the Day.

It is a time honored custom of the Modern Woodmen of America to hold an annual memorial service over the graves of departed Sovereigns, that appropriate tribute may be paid to the memory of their dead. This is as it should be, and the ceremonies which this large fraternal order observes on such occasions are very impressive and well calculated to bring out the fine feelings of fellowship and fraternity which characterizes this order everywhere.

Last Sunday Crystal Camp No. 11 Modern Woodmen of America, held their annual memorial services at the Odd Fellows cemetery, which was attended by an unusually large crowd of members and friends of the order.

At the appointed hour the members of this Camp assembled at their hall and formed for the march to the Grand Central hotel where they took carriages and proceeded to the cemetery in procession which was well directed by Sovereign Charley James, marshal of the day.

To the Uniform Rank of Crystal Camp, which turned out in full uniform, and to the Woodmen band which rendered most appropriate music for the occasion, may be attributed a large share of the splendid showing and the well timed ceremonies of the day.

In a short and happily worded address Dr. Regan of Crystal Camp paid high tribute to the memory of the departed ones who in life were members of this order—Sovereigns Meador, Hardesty, Owens and Willis.

It is interesting to note is this connection that during the fifteen years since Crystal Camp has been organized only four deaths have occurred in its ranks.

After the address and other ceremonies the order drew up in a wedge shaped form around the grave of Sovereign Willis and each member lovingly bestowed a floral offering upon the grave in memory of the departed brother and friend. The Sovereigns then in order proceeded to decorate the graves of the other three departed ones whose memories they sacredly cherish. During the entire exercises at the graves the colors of the order and the American flag was displayed by the standard bearer, Colonel William Pitts.

The large assembly of citizens and friends of this order were much impressed with the appropriate ceremonies of the order and all returned from the cemetery feeling that the occasion was well timed and calculated to cultivate the cardinal principles which underlie the Order of Modern Woodmen of America.

Farmers Meeting June 16

Mr. A. M. Barron has received the advice from Mr. Geo. A. Cole superintendent of the Farmers

Institutes in this state, that a farmers institution will be held in the auditorium, this city on date June 16th.

To the efforts of Mr. Barron are largely due this meeting in the interest of Carroll county farmers, and every thing possible should be done to make the occasion a credit to the city and vicinity.

The institution will be directed by Superintendent Cole of the Agricultural Experiment Station, who will be here in person. Let all who are in anyway interested in agricultural pursuits attend this meeting.

The Crescent Hotel.

The Crescent hotel, one of the most popular and best appointed summer hostleries in the state is now opened to guests and was never so well prepared to provide for the comfort and convenience of those who share its hospitality. According to arrangements the formal opening will take place on the 15th of June.

The Crescent has been recently undergoing a thorough renovation and is now in better condition than ever before.

The company, with Dr. A. S. Maddox as its efficient manager, has just purchased a fine line of new furnishings which is being installed throughout the building and will add very much to its already delightful apartments. Dr. Maddox never does things by halves and no pains nor expense will be spared in making the Crescent equal in its equipments to any first-class hotel in the southwest.

The Crescent is ideally located and of easy access, it commands beautiful surroundings and its elevation assures to its guests at all times the fine tonic effect of perfectly pure Ozark mountain air. The building is commodious and imposing in appearance; equipped with all the modern conveniences; it has spacious reception apartments, noble halls, corridors and porticos and splendidly furnished suits which will delight the most fastidious. The large dining hall is unexcelled by any in the south for elegance.

The management has thoughtfully arranged elaborate social functions for the season in keeping with the most refined taste; the splendid Norris-McMullen-Seidel-Norton orchestra has been retained for the season and will regale the guests of this hotel with the choicest music.

It may be spoken of here as a matter of special interest to the guests of the Crescent that it is the only hotel in Eureka Springs which is supplied throughout the entire building with fresh spring water piped directly from one of the many famous springs for which this city is noted. Eureka Springs people are proud of the Crescent.

Change of Business.

W. C. Luth has just closed a deal with Mr. P. N. Wightman in which Mr. Luth gets a 160 acre ranch at Sayer, Okla. and Mr. Wightman gets the lunch stand and notion store formerly owned by Mr. Luth. The consideration in the deal is $3,000. Mr. Wightman expects to arrive in this city next Sunday to take charge of his new acquired business and Mr. Luth will soon settle on his ranch in Oklahoma. While we regret to lose so good a citizen as Mr. Luth and his family Eureka Springs will welcome the newcomers who are highly spoken of.

The Home Restaurant Improvement

The popular Home Restaurant Company is just finishing an elegant and airy dining apartment in connection with its present place of business on Spring street. The new dining hall is 26x46 feet in dimension, and screened in on three sides which will make it very comfortable and attractive. One hundred guests can be seated at a time in the two dining rooms and will have as heretofore the most prompt and careful service obtainable in any first-class restaurant.

Messrs. Wallace and Brown the thoroughgoing and experienced proprietors of the Home Restaurant expect to open their new dining-room to the public by next Saturday. You will be well fed and courteously treated at the Home Restaurant.

Up To the People of Oklahoma

After a conference between Governor C. N. Haskell, Fred S. Caldwell, legal advisor to his excellency in matters pertaining to the Billups liquor law, and some functionaries of the Anti-saloon League in the state, it is announced that, "The people must act first," in the prosecution of violators of the Oklahoma liquor law.

This will be most joyful news to the sheriffs and prosecuting attorneys as well as the judges and other district, county and municipal officials, in the state all of whom have had fightings without and perturbations within lest they should be made responsible for the non-enforcement of the enactment. What the outcome of the policy announced by the governor will be, is entirely conjectural.

Series of Dances

The first of series of select dances which will be continued during the season, probably on Monday and Friday evenings of each week, was enjoyed by some thirty couples at the Basin Park hotel last Monday evening. With Mr. J. H. Phillips of the Basin Park to direct such a function is to say that it was an elegant and thoroughly enjoyable affair. The music was furnished by the orchestra and was highly appreciated by all present.

The following out of town persons who are guests at the hotel were in attendance:

Mrs. and Miss Hart, Manistee, Mich., Mr. and Mrs. Downe of Chicago, Ill., guests at the Crescent. Mr. and Mrs. Baum, New Orleans, La., and Miss Bruere, St. Charles, Mo.

All the subsequent numbers in this series of dances which will be given at the Basin Park this season will also be invited affairs.

Our Democratic "Business Administration"

Some of the democratic leaders are denouncing the governor for having vetoed so many of the appropriation bills; others condemn the action of the legislature in making what is claimed to have been extravagant appropriations, but every one who will talk fairly of the situation agrees that the state and all her institutions will be compelled for the next two years to go on a poverty schedule. The state institutions will be poorly manned and meagerly maintained. And in spite of this we have the best authority for the assertion that the present rate of taxation the state will run behind in the next two years about $400,000.

This is the situation the people of Arkansas have to face. Although one of the richest states in the Southwest, we are too poor to have the ordinary biennial state reports printed; we are too poor to care properly for the blind and deaf; too poor to undertake any work of public improvement that will require the outlay of cash. Is this because our taxes are low? Ask yourselves, that, taxpayers, when you compare our tax rate with that of other states and find it twice, three times, and in some cases even four times as high as prevails elsewhere. The condition we are in cannot be due to any such cause as that. What then is the reason?

The general cause for our present financial shame is that this state is in the hands of a plundering political gang that has its branches not only in the state house, but in almost every court house in Arkansas. Revenues that ought to go into the state and county treasuries, to be used for the people's benefit, have gone into excess fees for the benefit of private political gangsters; into salaries for political blockheads, known as legislators, who remain in long and unnecessary sessions; into pay for an army of clerks and committee hangers-on that infest the state house during every legislative session; into "rake-offs" for contract contractors and others who have dealings with the state; into other places best known to those who have controlled our election machinery and who today have the helpless taxpayers by the throat.

For years, as a state, Arkansas has been leading a hand-to-mouth existence. Merchants who furnish the state charitable institutions with provisions have been compelled to wait until a year or more has passed before they have received their pay. County tax collectors have been begged to hurry their remittances in to the state treasury before the time required by law, in order that there may be a little money to go on. The state must continually struggle to make ends meet, and for months the spectre of a scrip basis has constantly been before the administration.

This, briefly, is the "business administration" that the democracy is furnishing Arkansas. The gang politicians delight in every campaign to repeat the fiction that the republicans went out of power in Arkansas leaving 67 cents in the treasury. Even granting that to be true, how would it compare with the present situation? Then the state was impoverished from the war, but, in spite of that extensive internal improvements had been set on foot. Many of the state institutions had just been established at heavy expense. But today Arkansas is rich, with a large and prosperous population, yet the state government faces what may be a deficit of $400,000 unless some solution to the difficulty can be found in the next two years. And instead of founding opening new state institutions, as the republicans did, the democracy cannot furnish the money to maintain those we have. The statement that we are to have the new agricultural schools is no defense, in the face of the fact that the appropriations for the new tuberculosis sanitarium and insane hospital have been withheld.

The people of Arkansas would like to take pride in their state government and have it compare favorably with those of other states, but by no stretch of imagination are they able to deceive themselves. The fact is plain that as a climax of thirty-five years of uninterrupted democratic rule the state is so poor that it cannot decently maintain its own household.

The democracy of Arkansas is controlled through a vicious and corrupt machine that bulldozes independent men in its own papty and robs republicans. Governor Donaghey had to fight that machine when he became a candidate, and before he was nominated had to make concessions to it. Now, whenever he fails to do its bidding, the howl starts from almost every county. This is the situation, and we are enjoying the "business administration" that has come from it. Let the voters ask, is it satisfactory? Is it good for the state? Is it good for the people personally, who desire honesty and efficiency in government?—State Republican.

For the Farm.

Poultry manure is one of the richest produced on the farm, containing a large amount of the various fertilizing materials, especially nitrogen; being comparatively dry, it ferments rapidly, and in order therefore to prevent serious loss from the volatilization of the nitrogen some preservative should be added to it. It may be mixed with the absorbents and manures obtained from the other farm animals, which will prevent its to rapid fermentation.

Comparing the properties of the manure produced by the different farm animals, it will be seen that when all are intimately and evenly mixed in the manure heap, there will be a kind of blending of characteristics which will be very beneficial to the whole.

Materials used for the purpose of litter in and about the stable are numerous, says Bulletin of Virginia Station. The greater the absorbing and retaining power, and the richer they are in fertilizing materials, the better they will be for the purpose for which they are used. The use of litter is chiefly to supply a dry and comfortable bed for animales. In addition it absorbs and retains the liquid portion of the excreta.

It also increases the quantity of the manure and thus secures a more equal distribution of it when applied to the soil. Besides the the litter increases the physical and mechanical effect of the manure and retards and regulates its decomposition. The material generally used for this purpose is straw. This is chiefly because it is one of the products of the farm and is a good absorbent, thought rather poor in fertilizing materials, especially nitrogen and phosphates.

Other materials sometimes used are dry leaves, peat and sawdust. Leaves are good absorbents and contain considerable fertilizing materials. Dry peat is an excellent material when it can be had, as it has a very high absorbing power, especially for the soluble nitrogenous compounds, and is much richer in organic nitrogen than any of the other substances.

Sawdust is a good absorbing material, but it is the poorest in fertilizing constituents, and should never be used for the purpose of litter unless other materials can not be obtained. The quantity of litter required varies with conditions, but enough should be used thoroughly to absorb and retain the liquid excreta and to prevent loss by the rapid decomposition of the manure.

Preserving materials, such as gypsum, land plaster, kainit and acid phosphate are often used either with the litter in the stable or on the manure heap as absorbents to retain the volatile ammonia; they also tend to check fermentation. Kainit should not be allowed to come in contact with the feet of animals, as it may cause trouble.

ARTFUL GEORGE.

"Then you accept me, Ethelinda? Oh, what happiness."

"Yes, but you must see father and mother, George."

"As regards your father and mother, Ethelinda," said George, who had been frequently snubbed by both during his courtship—as regards to your father and mother—"and he curled up his lip and threw out his chest.

"Speak low, George," she said. "I think they are both listening."

"As regards your father and mother," continued the wily lover, raising his voice, "I think your father is one of the most gentlemanly men I ever met; and as for your mother, she is one of the loveliest of women. I am not surprised that you are so good, so beautiful, so sweet, when I remember you are the offspring of such a pair."

"George," said the father, bursting into the room, "she is yours."

"And you have our blessing," said the mother.

And George, as he adjusted his collar, thought to himself that an ounce of timely compliment is worth a pound of argument.

Clubbed by a Park Watchman. Little Rock.—John Catherina, a watchman at the ball park here, was fined $5 and costs by a justice of the peace recently on a charge of striking J. Perry with a club because he attempted to peep through the fence at the ball game. The justice held that the watchman had no right to strike Perry, despite his being a trespasser, and that the proper course would have been for Catherina to have called an officer.

Murder Charge Dismissed. Little Rock.—F. H. O'Keefe, arrested on the charge of murdering F. N. Speedy, whose body was found in the Arkansas river last week, was discharged by the justice of the peace after he had learned that the evidence expected of two witnesses was of no importance.

Raising Money For Masonic Home. Batesville.—The initial step toward furnishing the new Masonic Home here was taken when the ladies of the local Order of the Eastern Star gave an entertainment and bazar for the purpose of raising funds toward that end. The affair was well patronized.

LOCAL AND PERSONAL

Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Lasitor and children of Talfurios, Tex., have secured apartments at the Crescent Hotel for the summer and are expected to arrive in this city today.

Judge G. O. Limbarger is making arrangements to spend the summer attending the Seattle Fair and visiting his sons Lawrence and Larkin at Yakahima, Washington.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Reid closed Avarana last week for the summer. They will spend the heated terms on the New England coast during which time a fine new home is building at Ottawa Ill.

Hugo Schadel of Kansas has just opened an office here for the practice of law. Mr. Schadel expects to seek admission to the bar in this city at the next term of the circuit court which convenes in July.

Judge John I. Worthington recently received his commission under his appointment as U. S. Attorney for the western district of Arkansas, and passed through this city last evening en route to Fort Smith where he assumes the duties of his office at once.

Mrs. A. R. Sayles left on Saturday for St. Louis where she will visit her cousin Mrs. Bernis for a few days. Thence the two will journey to the Seattle Exposition and other portions of the great northwest. Mrs. Sayles will keep bachelors hall and try to look pleasant.

Mr. Fred Woodford a popular young engineer on the M. & N. A. R. R. left yesterday for Leslie Ark. Mr. Woodford is passenger engineer and runs from Leslie to Searcy. He is a great admirer of Eureka Springs—perhaps not for the springs so much as for one of her fairer inhabitants.

Mr. and Mrs. Mel Horner who have spent the past three months in our city with great benefit to their health, left Monday for their Chicago home. Mr. Horner has worked continuously for 44 years with the Union Stock Yards of Chicago. These people were so charmed with Eureka Springs that they will probably buy property and make this their home.

Pen Pictures Of People Of Our Town

Where pellucid waters flow peacefully and soothingly down the beautiful Cumberland river, in that splendid state of Tennessee, the subject of our sketch first sent forth his tiny cry of arrival into the great busy world. He was small then—and weak and helpless—but 38 years have changed things and now he tips the scales at 180, stretches tape out six feet and gets over the earth in style and speed that convinces you he means to get there.

He is one of our new men in Eureka Springs and from what the writer knows he is an acquisition that will prove helpful to the business interests of this most remarkable place. He is rather tall, well built, wears a frock coat of light brown color. Has a blond mustache that is rather long and flowing, wears a soft light brown hat—has eyes that are peculiar—sometimes almost gray, but mostly a very light brown.

The cast of his features are of the intellectual type and he is so mild, pleasant and good natured he will surely become a favorite with womankind. Our subject lived in his native state until he was grown to manhood when he went to that wonderful southwestern empire, known as Texas. The possibilities and resources of the country so appealed to him that he located and lived so long in the state he almost believed himself a Texan. Last fall he traded for the Chautauqua house and brought his wife and six children to Eureka Springs, where he says he means to stay.

Mr. J. S. Hixon, for he is our subject, has the most abiding faith in this unique city. During his stay he has slowly and carefully looked over the many different features of Eureka Springs so that he perhaps has today as good a general idea of the real health assets of this city as most of the oldest citizens. Mr. Hixon has traveled extensively and is familiar with health resorts and the way most of them are made—viz. by weathly men or railroads who exploit and advertise them for revenue purposes only and not because they have any particular merit in relieving the ills of humanity.

Being a quiet, unassuming man, and being a good listener, Mr. Hixon has heard enough from visitors who come here for various chronic diseases, to convince him that Eureka Springs is a health resort that cures. Furthermore he appreciates the fact that few resorts can equal Eureka Springs in natural beauty interesting points of interest and advantages in air and climate. Then he further realizes that our resort is devoid of many of the objectionable features of so many other places—such as sand storms, dust, flies, mosquitoes and intense heat, so that altogether he is perfectly satisfied with his property interest and felicitates himself that they are situated in what he considers the best health resort he has ever seen.

Mr. Hixon is not a hotel man by calling, but he possesses the element that will win success. He is courteous, kind, anxious to please, good natured, tells a story entertainingly, and has that combination of qualities that go to make up what we call hospitality.

He is making friends among the visiting public and we prophesy that when the season opens Mr. Hixon will place the Chautauqua house back in its old proud position as one of the best and most popular small hotels in our city.

He's a Hoosier and he boasts of it, yes sir—and more, he boasts that he was born close to Crawfordsville, Indiana, where the talented Lew Wallace was born. It was a little place and he was a little fellow—but the name always sang melodiously in his ears—Ladoca, Ladoca, Indiana. This subject of ours is not old—because we, nor he count age by the flight of years. He has in a cheerful, hopeful, kindly heart, the perennial fountain of eternal youth. And although the old records back in Ladoca may show that he was born in 1838 and therefore, according to the ways of ordinary mortals, they would call him 71—yet he is just a young man—hopeful joyful and vigorous.

In 1848 this subject of ours migrated by ox teams to Wisconsin and on the way passed through the wonderful city of Chicago—then only claiming 300 inhabitants. He passed through in state, too—on the back of a big red bull which his parents were taking along to Wisconsin.

During the civil war he enlisted from Minnesota and served 26 months in the cavalry for your Uncle Samuel. Nearly thirty years ago he came to Eureka Springs, which he has called home ever since. He is about 5 feet 9 inches tall, well built; has hazel eyes, gray hair, mustache and whiskers; lives on Spring street, and is an ardent worker in civic cleanliness. He wears a soft black hat and modest clothes, and takes a decided interest in the mineralogical outcrops of this Northwest Arkansas. There is no man in the county so well posted on lead, zinc and copper outcrops and prospects than the subject of our story. It's the one thing, the only thing that will make him turn his back upon a good meal of victuals—But just tell him of some mineral find and you get him interested at once.

Few men are as familiar with the conformation of the Marion county mineral fields as our subject. He has been over it all and can tell you of more good chances to buy mineral lands cheap, than most of those who made a business of it. He just hunts mineral because he loves it, not to get rich, for he prefers not to be rich.

Samuel Harshberger Britts believes in the brotherhood of man and that every one should have an equal show in life's battle. He is an old and intimate acquaintance of ex-Governor, now Senator LaFollett, and like that gentleman is a political free lance. As a rule you will find them both working with the republican party, but on some new or evolving principle they both are on the scouting line far in advance of the rank and file. They are not afraid of being found wrong but neither will stay wrong after they know it. It has been by the active, independent thought and work of just such men that progress in human affairs has come about.

Capt. Britts, as he is more often called, is a man of great intellect and observation. He loves nature in all its forms and lives close to her—hence his sturdy frame and boyish heart. While not a member of any church, he loves and practices those sterling virtues that were crystalized into what is known as the Golden Rule, by the lowly Nazarene—"Do unto others as you would have others do unto you." He puts his religion into every day use and rests Sunday.

Capt. Britts is a great lover of children and as a proof of his artless, guileless make up, every little child takes to him without hesitation. No better evidence is needed of a man's good points than that children love him.

While not a moneyed man, Capt. Britts is a useful citizen always standing for and with those who are working for the city's advancement. May his shadow never grow less.

Shout triumphed, the oligarchy would have been perpetuated and this same poor beggar that spilt his blood so generously, that endured the wasting of his home, would have had the bag to hold? These are facts, and no amount of sophists will evade them

"And yet the politicians, our 'molders of sentiment,' Heaven save the mark! appeal to us in the sacred name of 'tradition' to turn back the tide of political tolerance in the south, to keep in political ignorance and serfdom these great masses who have not yet recovered from the effects of a war which tested their disinterestedness as has no conflict in history!

"I have the greatest gratitude for and reverence toward the men, officers and rank and file who sacrificed life and treasure for convictions that were honest. I am a Southerner and my love and sympathy belong to my people; and it is from the standpoint of a Southerner and I am now speaking.

"But I maintain that the time has come to cease invoking ghosts instead of issues for guidance.

"I maintain that the one way, the only way, for the South to rise to the stature builded for it in the imagination of God Almighty, is to regulate its conduct by living, imminent issues; not the bygone and irrelevant thought and standards of days that are dust.

"I repeat that the South, with all its possibilities that tax professors will be the chattel of the butt Searcy. He is a great admirer of Eureka Springs—perhaps not for the springs so much as for one of her fairer inhabitants.

Mr. and Mrs. Mel Horner who have spent the past three months in our city with great benefit to their health, left Monday for their Chicago home. Mr. Horner has worked continuously for 44 years with the Union Stock Yards of Chicago. These people were so charmed with Eureka Springs that they will probably buy property and make this their home.

Patronize home institutions if you wish to make your home town grow and prosper. Are we all doing this? Are you buying ice that is made in Eureka Springs or shipped in? Buy your ice of Martin Gibson and you will have home made ice—made from Eureka Springs water and it will be helping a home institution. It will keep the money all at home if you do. Are you taking home made ice? It dont cost any more than imported ice—stand up for Eureka Springs.

our fathers conquered the wilderness, and carve out for our-selves the broad, tolerant and overshadowing eminence God's gifts have outlined for this favored section.

"I am forty-three years old. I have never held a political office in my life, I have no political aspirations whatever and never expect to harbor any. My ambition is simply that of non-partisan, non-political service.

"Analyze those who object to my position with regard to southern tolerance. The overwhelming majority will be found to be cold blooded, incurable pap suckers, whom a broad thought would frighten into paralysis or instant death.

"If any man denies this, it will be in order for you to demand the past, present and future political aspirations of himself and his family to the twenty-third cousin of his great grandfather.

"Humanity is weak. I would not be considered as being too harsh or brutal. But nine-tenths of the criticisms of these policies will come from people who have spent sleepless nights and days being 'regular' so they could get into the sweet and mossy fields of political clover.

"And for the blind fetish of 'regularity' they'll keep on opposing anything within a thousand miles of innovation or independence, until the sun falls from his place in the heavens."

Excessive Rains in Chicot County. Lake Village.—Incessant rains for a period of 17 consecutive days have cast a gloom over the farming prospects of this section. Crops were already about 15 days later than last year, and this serious condition makes the situation alarming.

CAPITOL COMMISSION SELECTED

Little Rock.—Governor Donaghy has announced his appointments to the new State Capitol Commission created under the Oldham act, which was passed by the recent legislature. He appointed Charles L. Thompson, a prominent architect of this city; H. L. Remmel, a prominent banker and business man whose residence is in Newport, but who makes his home in this city; John I. Moore, acting governor of Arkansas during the legislative session two years ago, and one of the most prominent lawyers in Eastern Arkansas, whose home is at Helena, and B. F. Foster, a farmer, a warm and close personal friend of the governor, who lives at Rison. Following the announcement of the personnel of the new commission, which takes the place of the one discharged by the recent legislature, the governor states that he, as chairman of the body, will probably call the commission together in a few days. He announces that the commission will get down to work at once.

Mother Risks Her Life to Save Child.

Prescott.—Mrs. Earl Hill and her two-year-old child came near being the victims of a serious runaway here recently. Mrs. Hill had just alighted from a buggy in front of the court house, leaving the child on the seat, and was preparing to hitch the horse when the animal became frightened and started to run. Mrs. Hill at once jumped between the wheels and, grabbing the baby with one hand and the seat of the buggy with the other, held her grip while being dragged through the street, until the animal was stopped, just as the horse was ready to plunge the vehicle into a ditch, which would have resulted seriously to the woman and child. Beyond a few bruises, Mrs. Hill was not injured. The child was unhurt.

Old Negro Saves Family and Dies.

Camden.—After risking his own life to save others, Bill Crabtree, an aged negro, burned to death here a few days ago in the fire which destroyed the two-story dwelling house occupied by Mrs. W. A. Poynter. After saving all of the children in the house, the negro went back to the burning home to secure some clothing and personal effects. He was overcome by the smoke and was buried beneath a pile of burning timbers. Crabtree, who lived with his family all his life, first died when the house was so that, in a sense, he saved the family, possibly, from a grave.

Slayer of Pet Henderson Surrenders.

Center Point.—Butler Ferguson, the negro who killed Pet Henderson at Center Point recently, was surrendered to the sheriff by Richard Ferguson, the father of the fugitive. Ferguson shot and instantly killed Henderson while the latter was seated on a sidewalk curbing with a companion. The shooting was apparently unprovoked.

Slayer of Walter Cain is Captured.

Lake Village.—It is reported that Sam Blakely, who shot and killed Deputy Sheriff Walter Cain at Portland recently, has been captured at Foote Station, Miss., by Dr. Lee of that place. Blakely refused to surrender, and was only captured after he had received a charge of 11 buckshot from Dr. Lee's gun. Blakely's brother was lynched at Portland recently.

Lonoke to Have a Chautauqua.

Lonoke.—Lonoke is to have a week's Chautauqua, which will present some of the best talent that can be procured, and will be given under the management of the Educational Lyceum Bureau of Conway. The program will begin Monday, June 21, and there will be two entertainments each day during the entire week.

Brakeman Charged With Robbery.

Hoxie.—John Myers, a brakeman on the Iron Mountain, has been arrested charged with robbing freight cars between O'Kea and Hoxie. He had a preliminary examination and was bound over to await the action of the grand jury.

Youth Attempts to Kill Self.

Nettleton.—John Pace of this place, 19 years of age, attempted suicide recently by drinking poison. A physician was called and pumped the poison from his stomach, saving the life of the young man. Pace was deeply infatuated with a young girl, but her parents forbade her receiving his attentions, it is said, and for this reason he wanted to die. Pace is from Winona, Miss., and is well connected.

Well Known Railroad Man Dead.

Argenta.—L. R. Nevins, of late years of Pine Bluff but for a long time a resident of this city, died recently at Middleboro, Pa. Mr. Nevins was one of the best known railroad men in Arkansas, said to have been the oldest employe of the Iron Mountain. For many years he ran an engine, and for some 12 years he was yardmaster in Argenta.

A Child Killed By Lightning.

Calico Rock.—Ruth, the 14-year-old daughter of George Sullivan, was killed by lightning here a few days ago. She had just come in from the field and was standing near the chimney in the house when the bolt descended. She lived 20 minutes, but never spoke.
